Introducing the Time Machine Management Console

The Time Machine Management Console enables users to manage virtual time for complex distributed applications and testing environments easily and effectively from a single interface.

The Time Machine Management Console improves the quality and convenience of complex application testing by providing a single virtual time management and configuration tool. You can configure and manage virtual time for different distributed application components from a single Time Machine Management Console.

The Time Machine Management Console allows customers to configure virtual time and apply that virtual time to specific components of applications. For example, if your application is deployed on a JBoss application server and uses an Oracle database to store application data, then with the Console, you can configure and enable virtual time for both parts of your application; the application server part and the database part. All that work can be easily done with TM Console.
